WORK ALL WINTER

ON L. N. DITCHES

If Weather Favorable and Men Available—Good Prices on Steel Work

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Sept. 8.—If the coming winter is an open one the heavy machinery on the excavation work of the Lethbridge Northern may operate continuously through the spring. The earth is dry now, which means that frost will not up the dirt moving. The only obstacle that might interfere in the opinion of Secretary Dunning is the possible refusal of the men to work in the winter months.

In July approximately 500,000 cubic yards of earth were moved. This is about the same amount as was moved in June. July work has smashed the previous month's record had more men been available. The contractors at no time in July worked at a maximum.

Satisfaction is expressed at the very reasonable price on the steel work by the Dominion Bridge Company of Montreal. "We are getting very favorable bids on all of our work," said the secretary, "and the work is moving along fine. We cannot complain in the least. I think we have been very fortunate with most of our bids."

A. G. Creelman, Calgary, who has the contract for the cement work and timber structures at Willow Creek has established a camp and is now busy.

September 17 the contracts for the concrete and timber work on the head works and crossings of the Oldman river will be let.

The Lethbridge Northern officials are now housed in a newly erected office in the new Standard Bank building. The quarters are none too large; in fact a congestion is anticipated when the engineers now in the field come in for the winter.

FOSTER, DOHERTY, CALDER AND REID TO QUIT CABINET

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—With the return of the Premier to Ottawa tomorrow, the more serious preparations for election will be begun. Much work has to be done. Primarily stands cabinet reorganization. Expected some months ago, the reorganization has on several occasions been delayed, but it is expected that the Premier will now take advantage of the opportunity and go to the country on a fully reorganized cabinet.

Four to Resign

The changes probably will mean the resignations of Sir George Foster, minister of trade and commerce; Hon. J. D. Baird, minister of railways; Hon. C. J. Doherty, minister of justice, and Hon. J. A. Calder, president of the privy council, with whom have been mentioned of J. A. Stewart, member for Lanark; Captain Marion of Fort William, and H. H. Stevens of Vancouver. But it is possible that the Premier will also seek new blood for his cabinet under present members of parliament.

New Alignment Old Line Parties

The announcement of an election has let loose a flood of rumors. The Premier's emphasis in his London speech on the issue of protection and free trade is taken in some quarters to indicate that a new alignment of the old parties will be sought. Nor would some such outcome occasion great surprise. The strength of the government will be directed against the fiscal doctrine of the National Progressives. Such a campaign, it is expected among government supporters, would secure a large proportion of the protection vote in the east. But the campaign is only in its initial stage, and none knows for certain where its developments may lead.

From present indications candidates will be representative not only of the four parties officially in the field, but of almost every conceivable point of view. There are innumerable, innumerable, and women candidates, as well as the women's vote, may play a considerable part.

The cabinet council has been called for today, but it is improbable that anything will be handled beyond routine. A number of appointments are pending, but they will await the return of the Premier.

MONTANA MISER STARVES TO DEATH

Emil Warner, Who Formerly Had Ranch in Sweetgrass, Hills, Had $6,200 Cash

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Sept. 2.—Dying of starvation with $5,000 to his credit in a Great Falls bank, and $500 in cash on his person, Emil Warner, famous miser of the upper Judith river country, Montana, was found by two riders of the Hamilton Livestock company in his cabin last Sunday, his terribly emaciated body lying on the floor near the bed, partly undressed, with his head on his knees. Despondency over the murder of a neighbor, hogheadmaster named Burk over 50 years ago, is given as the reason for Warner's seclusion. Hundreds in the Judith basin believe that Martin committed the crime.

The account which Warner had in the bank is thought to be the proceeds of a sale of cattle made several years ago, when he was in the stock business in the Sweet Grass Hills country southeast of Coeur. Many of the old-timers along the border on the Alberta side remember Warner. He was a character in the cattle country for many years.

In late years, so miserly was Warner that he would not even use decent clothing or bedding, but slept winter and summer in bedclothes composed entirely of gunny sacks. His diet consisted of oatmeal, sour dough bread and potatoes.

HOWELL HARRIS, PIONEER OF THE '70s, DIES IN MONTANA

Noted Old Timer Who Rode Range—When Buffalo Hunted Free Hunted at Fort Benton—Known to Thousands

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Sept. 2.—One of the real old timers of the Lethbridge district, whose name was a household word in the homes of the pioneers of Southern Alberta and Northern Montana, passed away in Montana on Monday last in the person of Howell Harris. Burial was made in Fort Benton, where Mrs. Harris is now residing. The late Mr. Harris was 78 years of age, and had a host of friends in Southern Alberta who will grieve to hear that he has passed beyond.

To write the story of the late Howell Harris would be to tell of the development of Alberta from the day of the buffalo herds to the present. Many stories have appeared in the pages of the Macleod Times and Montana since the days when the buffalo roamed the plains of Southern Alberta. He has told of the days when they were so numerous that in the migrating period of the year it was impossible to get through. He has told of visiting the spot where Lethbridge now stands in the early seventies, and considering that Lethbridge was not established in 1884, that is a long time.

With I. G. Baker Company

The late Mr. Harris is best known to the younger generation of old timers as a member of the Circle Cat company, but before the days when the circle herds roamed the ranges of both the Alberta and Montana side of the line, Mr. Harris was engaged with the I. G. Baker company, the pioneer riders of Fort Benton, Montana, Macleod, Alberta and Lethbridge. This company was later bought out by the Hudson's Bay Co., their rivals for the trade of the Indians in these parts, and that was how the Hudson's Bay company came to Lethbridge. While the I. G. Baker company was engaged in the trade at Fort Benton, Montana, Mr. Harris made many trips into Southern Alberta, and it was on one of these trips that he first saw the site of Lethbridge. At that time he was engaged in freighting. After the Baker company sold out their commercial interests, Mr. Harris came to Alberta to look after their ranching interests. Later the ranching concern became known as the Conrad Circle Ranching company with W. G. Conrad, C. E. Conrad and I. G. Baker as the three stockholders. The title of this company ran in thousands on both sides of the line, and it was one of the really big outfits of this part of the west. As settlement crept in on the range the herds of the Circle began to dwindle, and along about 1897 there were few left, though the company still owned considerable land on both sides of the line. Some time after the cattle business of the company was wound up and Howell Harris' life as a cattleman practically came to an end.

Reached at Bow Island

Following this, Mr. Harris bought himself a ranch near Bow Island which he managed successfully for some years, but failing health caused him to spend more and more time in California. He was a man who had lived the hard life of the ranges in the days when cow punching was the thing, and he resolved to take it easy in his declining years. During the past couple of years he had been living in Montana, his old stamping ground at Fort Benton, headquarters of his old company, calling to him. It was among the scenes of his vigorous youth in Montana that he closed his eyes and his remains were laid to rest at Fort Benton.

While living in Lethbridge Mr. Harris resided on 12th St. South, and his light-colored station was a familiar sight on the streets. Hundreds of old timers throughout Southern Alberta will hear with regret of his death.

Extravagance Not Waste
"I can forgive people for being a bit extravagant if they can afford it," said the Nicest Neighbor loudly; "but I find it hard to forgive waste, and the nicest neighbor, and—"

"Is it extravagance if they can afford it?" demanded the practical person, while the joyful shopper wanted to know "What is the difference between waste and extravagance, anyway?"

"I rather think it is extravagance, even if one can afford it, though I've no arguments to back my contention," said the Nicest Neighbor loudly; "but I've heard so much that waste and extravagance are far from being the same thing."

"That beautiful mullioned bookcase you bought last year, and that joyful shopper, she went on, 'was an extravagance, but I'm sure it was not waste.'"

"It was extravagance," the shopper admitted; "but I don't think it was waste. I've heard the very best of my heart. My spirit was at the lowest ebb; my whole outlook was of a gloomy hue of indigo. Even my husband wasn't a cheerful sight to me, and I see him through the mist of my spectacles again, and really, every thing glows. Quicker, isn't it, how just buying something can change your whole viewpoint? I went abroad once for a year when I was in my teens with a party of other girls. My particular pal and I used to get especially homesick, and the only cure we discovered was a sort of shopping. We were common sense enough to buy things that were useful and frivolous things, knowing we wouldn't have a cent for chocolate or afternoon tea until the next morning. At home, but we gloated over our treasures, enjoyed our foolishness to the utmost, and our spirits rose in time."

"That was certainly extravagance, but I wouldn't call it waste," cried the joyful shopper; "it was a crime, but it's not nearly as heinous a one as to throw half a dozen big hollow potatoes into the garbage can, as I've known some people do. Now, at home, I always had delicious meals, and sometimes very expensive ones, but though my mother would buy mushrooms and lobsters and what not, she wouldn't waste a crust of bread. We were half wild and cream and butter and eggs were as plentiful as the city, but I never saw a spoonful of food left over, except a few scraps of green peas left in the refrigerator to turn mouldy and be thrown away later on."

"I laughed reminiscently and recalled the remark with which all old friends would say, 'it was a little more than you could eat.' I never saw a spoonful of food left over, except a few scraps of green peas left in the refrigerator to turn mouldy and be thrown away later on."

PAINT THE PAINT

LIQUOR LAWS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has adopted newspaper work as a profession, and reported that much of his work so far has been done in Canada for American publications, and we noted the other day that he had the great satisfaction of acting as Caddy for Lord Northcliffe. Like other Americans, he has been fascinated by the operations of the British Columbia liquor law, a man not unfamiliar with large money transactions, he has looked into the question of profits, and learns that the government is making about $25,000 a day net, the year's revenue being estimated at about $9,000,000. This, it will be admitted, even in these days of inflation, is a comfortable sum for a government to have on hand, especially when it knows that the people who have contributed to it feel that they have had value for their money. The large profit made by the liquor trade will be a point of argument if the question is again revived of depriving the citizens of their liberties.

prayers. In China human sacrifices have, as a general practice, come out of date. In theory they are still the most costly, and therefore the most acceptable of all sacrifices.

This is where the wise Chinese farmer put one over the gods. He was praying for good crops and wanted the favor of the deities. Here is how he worked it. He placed a row of beads the road along which the gods were to pass. In the centre of the table was a bowl of incense. On the bagpipes, drums, cymbals, tamborines, horns and all kinds and manner, he placed the appropriate music. The shrewd farmer concealed his head behind the table and stuck his hand through the hole in the top. There with closed eyes and never a sign of the witcher tonight and I will ask the gods, being simple, naturally thought that it was a human sacrifice, all the more so because the gods were highly gratified. Impressed by such sacrifice, they presumably resolve in their wisdom to procure rain hearts to give that devout farmer an abundant harvest. As soon as they were safely out of sight, the farmer's hand was on the lever, and his suppliant withdrew his head, raised the table to his eyes, and he was at his work in his rice fields, chuckling over the way he had fooled the gods and duped them into giving him a good harvest at little cost to himself. It required but a small present to the gods to bring about their keeping silence and not giving it all away to the unsuspecting deities.

It is a curious thing that many Chinese farmers there are among the nations of old China. There were multitudes of them among the Jews in the days of the prophets. They helped the Jews to build a church or a temple, and lived as prelates in private. There were lots of them among the old robber bands of the Middle Ages. They burned and robbed and ravaged all their lives, and when death drew near they built a church or a temple, and lived as prelates in private. They burned and robbed and ravaged all their lives, and when death drew near they built a church or a temple, and lived as prelates in private.

Drunkennes Reduced
The new law, we are informed, has reduced charges of drunkenness and vagrancy by 30 per cent, but this is probably due to the fact that penalties for the infraction of the law are extremely severe. One can be sent to jail for three months for being drunk and one who violates any provision of the Act is liable to a six months' term. As a first offence, however, the law is lenient, and persons are permitted to dispense it. Liquor may be had also on doctors' prescriptions, and the law is lenient in this respect. Private guests are permitted to drink in their homes. Drinking in the streets has been abolished.

Police Have Wide Powers
The police seem to have been given almost unlimited powers of search and seizure. They can search any suspected premises or suspected persons without warrant, and if resistance is offered they can break locks and make arrests. Their mere suspicion is sufficient warrant. Another curious clause says that if any person has been convicted of a crime, he may be searched at any time by the police without a warrant. This is a very broad power, and it is one that has been given to the police in many other countries.

MURDEROUS MAFIA Baffles the POLICE
The police in New York, Detroit and other American cities investigating scores of mysterious murders among the Sicilians have been baffled by these crimes were not the result of a feud, but have been committed at the order of the infamous secret society, La Mafia. Almost invariably the victims of these crimes are themselves Sicilians. It is only upon rare occasions that Americans are assassinated and it is on this account that the public opinion refuses to become greatly excited. When it does, it is because the Mafia has been found in the United States. Murdered Police Chief Chief of Police Hennessy had collected information in these cases and was about to close his investigation. He had been told by the members of the Mafia, when one night on his way home he was shot and killed. The police arrived they found 12 saved-off thugs among the murders had thrown away. Arrogant and brutal, the police were made immediately and the accused persons placed on trial. The evidence against them was circumstantial, but in the public mind, the names of the Sicilians, it seemed ample. However, someone told of money was given an opportunity to visit the jury, and the result was that the jury was persuaded to acquit. The juryman left town on the next train. We don't believe in bribery in business, but in hard times it has to be done. Many pocket books are lean, thin and attenuated and it will have to depend upon another harvest before they get fat and plump. Our prices are as low as they can be, but we will bribe you still further by giving you a liberal discount on all cash sales in the Dry Goods—Cash and more Cash is our cry—"The disappointment both to debtor and creditor has been keen in their inability to liquidate obligations. You must not run down a store because the articles you want are not on the shelves. Many of you bounce about making remarks that this town is no good, the stores are rotten, because the goods they ask for are not there. They could get something else suitable instead of knocking the stores and town would be sympathetic and large hearted it would be possible to reason with them, saying that all the storekeepers capital is on the books for goods supplied to farmers for the past three or four years. So you see if this view of the case were taken it would mean that they could get something else suitable. Keep their money at home and helping to share the white man's burden.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. McElroy of Calgary were the guests of Mr. and Mrs.
Arthur Young of Macleod for a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Argue, Grenfell, Sask., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young for several days. Mrs.
Argue is a sister of Mr. Arthur Young.

Messrs. Baile and Pollard ventured forth in the early hours of Last Day to wail the poor little ducks. According to the bar they returned with they evidently did.

Miss Ada Benson, of Calgary, is spending her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Benson of Macleod.

On Sunday last a special Masonic church parade was held at Stacey.
The service was conducted by the Rev. S. Middleton of Macleod, who is grand chaplain for the province.
Those who accompanied the Rev. Middleton from Macleod included Messrs.
G. G. Gardner, G. C. Raitt, N.
Duluth and J. S. Lambert.

Mountain View Lodge No. 4 observed decoration day last Sunday.
There was nearly twice as many present this year than last year. The visitors met at 3 p.m. and went to the cemetery, and decorated the graves of thirteen brothers.

Mr. A. G. Campbell of Calgary, inspector of the Colonial Investment Co., is here inspecting the different properties of the above company, and also completing arrangements for putting in a quarter section of the celebrated Rose rye, the seed of which is being produced from the Noble Foundation Co., Ltd.

Mr. F. Cutler, our noted pianist, has made several successful trips to the river within the last few days.
He has arrived home with several bags of crabs. His only complaint is the large number of empty cans encountered on the riverbanks, which, in his estimation, should have been full, when they would have been more appreciated.

The regular monthly meeting of the city fathers was held at the Town Hall on Monday evening last. Present Mayor J. L. Favett, Councilmen McNichol, Macdonald, Gardner and Thewlis. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, and adopted. The health officer's report for the month was read by the secretary, accepted and duly filed.
A building on 16th St. was assessed.
After some short discussion it was decided to allow the Salvation Army the use of the old band uniforms.
There were several discussions over different matters pertaining to the town which were left over until further reports were obtained on same.

The local baseball team under the captaincy of Joe Marks visited the Macleod team on Monday to play in the baseball tournament. Once again Macleod showed their prowess at this game and walked away with the trophy.
In their first game they whitewashed the White Lake aggregation, and meeting Monarch in the finals they managed to take the large end, in spite of the fact that Monarch had the redoubtable Seaman pitching for them. Ferguson, pitching for Macleod handled the sphere in a masterly manner and landed the Macleod boys on the safety ridge. Joe Marks was also playing and hit the Lethbridge pitcher without mercy.
Please remember in this game Macleod was not pitching, and Macleod still put another notch on the gun.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Malby of Nelson, B.C., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Malby at Macleod.

Dr. and Mrs. Farnett motored to Stirling for the week-end, visiting relatives.

Mr. E. G. Vrooman and Mr. A.
Fraser of the Lethbridge Northern Bridging at Barons were visitors to Macleod on Sunday last.

The engineering force from Iron Springs, representing the Lethbridge Southern Irrigation District, arrived safely at Macleod on route to Banff.
Mr. Koenen, in charge of the party, entertained his friends at the Club.
The old timer, Jack Hunter, was as usual on deck. The boys hope to have good shooting for opening of the duck season.

The resignation of Hugh Mackintosh as trustee of the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District was placed in the hands of Secretary Dunnington on Tuesday of this week at the regular monthly meeting held in the Club. and to become effective Dec. 31, 1921.
It will be remembered that Mr. Macintosh was appointed to the position of trustee by the minister of public works under the provisions of the act to fill out the term of George Chew, whose term did not expire until Dec.
31, 1921. Mr. Mackintosh was appointed on account of not being a British subject.
Mr. Mackintosh's object in resigning from the trustees of the district was to express their wishes at a poll as to who the trustees shall be. Mr. Mac-intosh's resignation was a broad view of public matters, and many of the electors have expressed their appreciation of the fact that he shall be returned to the board in December.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Allen of Ia Grand, Oregon, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen of 23rd St. Mr. and Mrs. Allen are accompanied by their young daughters, Miss Grace and Miss Edna. It will likely be remembered that Mr. Allen was at Macleod some eight years since on the occasion of his brother Allen's serious illness. Mr. M. H. Allen says that gratitude has been the subject of public matters, and many of the electors have expressed their appreciation of the fact that he shall be returned to the board in December.

OBITUARY

The death occurred on Sunday, Sept. 4th at Lundre, Alberta, of Beatrice Oral Marlow, aged 23 years.
Mrs. Marlow was the wife of George Marlow Macleod and was well known in this district. The deceased had been sick for several months past, but her death came as an unexpected blow to relatives and friends. She went to Lundre a few days ago to spend a vacation with her parents, who reside there. She returned to Macleod on Tuesday last, and went back again to Lundre the day following, when she was taken very seriously ill, suffering severely from internal trouble, which proved fatal, and she passed away on Sunday, Sept.
4th. The late Mrs. Marlow is survived by her husband, Mr. George Marlow, contractor, of Macleod, and a daughter, Marjorie, aged five years. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Robert Welch of Lundre, and was married to Mr. Marlow at Lethbridge six years ago. The funeral took place from the Presbyterian church at Cowley on Tuesday, Sept. 6th, and the interment at the Cowley cemetery. A large number of surviving friends and relatives attended to pay their last respects to the deceased and many beautiful floral tokens were in evidence.

BEAVER CREEK NEWS

Nearly all the grain in the hills is in stock. In most places there will be a very poor yield, while in others the report is very good. By sowing the wheat early in the fall and it is expected that there will be nearly as much threshed in the hills and most of the rest of the year.

Though feed is somewhat scarcer this year than last, most of the feeders will have enough feed to feed the stock through the coming winter.

Mr. Reardon is harvesting the first crop of autumn wheat to be grown for feed in the hills.

Mr. T. M. Brown is at present putting up hay on his North Fork ranch.

He reports the hay very light, but green feed and oats very good.

The Hunter Bros. claim they will have plenty of feed this year. They have nearly finished their new barn, which is in a commodious and excellent building.

The Beaver Creek Stock Association is proving a very good success, and several farmers are taking advantage of permits to get cattle in on the forest reserve for summer grazing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Jones were business visitors to Macleod on Saturday last.

Miss Theil, who is teaching Porcupine Hills School, was in Macleod last week on a visit to her folks.

Mr. E. Walker is now forest ranger and game warden over the Porcupine Hills branch of the Dominion Forest Reserve.

CANADIAN AIR FORCE

Mr. R. F. Barnes has been appointed recruiting officer for the Canadian air force.
All persons joining the air course receive a course of training at Camp Borden. This is an excellent opportunity to learn to trade free of expense during the winter months.
Those who show ability may be attached to the permanent vacancies and receive double the rate of pay of their rank.

All wishing to join should call on Mr. Barnes at his office without delay, so that transportation to Camp Borden may be arranged.

Notice of terms of service, etc., will be handed to recruits prior to attes-tation.

Terms of Service Enlistment service for four years on training duty of 28 days, exclusive of travelling time to and from the place of training. Periods of staff duty at camps are optional to recruits. If, upon transfer, vacancies exist on the staff establishment, these periods extend from three to six months or less if services are no longer required. The periods between periods of duty will be on leave without pay.

Rates of Pay
Per day
Flight Sergeant . . . $2.05 Sergeant . . . 1.80
Corporal . . . 1.45
First Air Mechanic . . . 1.15 Second Air Mechanic . . . 1.00 Airman employed on staff duties for more than the normal training period will receive double the above rates, up to twelve months' duty.
Period of paid service will be from departure from home to date of return home.

Dependents' Allowance On active service or in time of peace when an airman is posted from duty for more than a month at any place more than fifteen miles from his place of residence, there shall be payable to or for the benefit of his dependent or dependents in the case of Air-Mechanics, 1st and 2nd class, $30 per month; and Warrant Officers and Non-commissioned Officers, $25 per month; provided that no dependent has claim any travelling allowance in respect of such tour of duty and that quarters for the airman and his dependent or dependents are not available at the place to which he is posted for duty.

Transportation Transportation expenses between place of residence and camp, and vice versa, including berth, and family remuneration for members allotted married quarters, within established limits will be paid.

Travelling Allowance Travelling allowance will be the rate of $5.00 per day when not supplied with berths or meals, and when supplied with berths and meals it is limited to three-quarters the above rate.

Uniforms
A certain number of married quarters at camp will be available for the members of the staff who are desirous of taking their families, and ration may be had for the families on repayment at current ration value.

Promotions
On enlistment airman will be given the rank of 2nd A.M. unless they give proof of a higher rank held in the R.A.F. On such proof being shown, the higher rank may be granted the promotion.

Promotion will be made from time to time within the establishment, on merit, and on the results of examination. Rank held in a previous corps will be considered.

Recruits should bring all documents relating to previous service with them upon graduation will largely depend on their initial formation and pend on such documents.
